EXTERNAL JACKET STRAP FOR BACKPACK AND SUITCASE

Short strap with a metal ring at one end and a quick-release buckle in the middle: clipped to a backpack, travel bag or cabin suitcase, it holds a jacket, a coat or an extra bag on the outside. Setup and care on one page.

REF. SANGLESACBLCK1 · BACKPACK, SUITCASE, CABIN BAG · METAL RING, QUICK-RELEASE BUCKLE

Before use

The metal ring, opened with a press on its spring gate, hooks onto the bag; the strap, closed by its buckle, forms a loop around what you carry outside: a rolled jacket or coat, a small bag by its handle. Bag and jacket are not included.

Setting up

1. Hook the ring to a solid point on the bag (D-ring, sewn strap, handle; on a cabin suitcase, the carry handle) and let the gate close.
2. Open the buckle by pressing its two tabs, to free the loop.
3. Roll the jacket tightly or take the extra bag by its handle, and place it in the loop.
4. Close the buckle until it clicks, then pull the free end: nothing should slip when you shake the bag.
5. Check while walking: the load does not swing or rub against your leg. To take it back, one press on the buckle is enough.

Ring on the bag handle, rolled jacket in the loop closed by the buckle.

Care

- Hand wash the strap in lukewarm water with mild soap; air dry. No machine, no bleach.
- Wipe the ring after rain; rinse the buckle if sand gets in, it must click firmly.
- Cracked buckle, ring that no longer closes, frayed webbing: replace it.

SAFETY

- Nothing heavy or valuable: the strap is made for a jacket or a small bag, and what hangs outside comes loose or gets stolen more easily.
- Never use it to tow, to hang a heavy load or to hold a person.
- Keep out of reach of young children: a strap with a buckle can wrap around the neck.

GOOD TO KNOW

- On a backpack, hook it at the top, on the side opposite the bottle pocket: the jacket hangs without getting in the way of your arm.
- On a flight, a jacket hooked outside counts towards the size of your cabin bag: take it off before the sizer check.
