FITTING GUIDE

SET OF 2 REFLECTIVE ANKLE BANDS

Two open rigid rings, black with a fluorescent yellow reflective strip, that grip your trouser leg at the ankle: the fabric stays clear of the chain and the motion of your legs shows in headlights. Fitting, rules and care on one page.

REF. SPBANDECHEVJAUN2 · 2 CLIP-ON RINGS, 60 MM DIAMETER · PLASTIC, FLUORESCENT YELLOW REFLECTIVE STRIP

What the bands do

The ring keeps its shape and pinches the fabric: the trouser leg stops flapping and no longer catches in the chain, chainrings or cranks. The yellow strip bounces headlight beams back to their source, and since it rises and falls as you pedal, it catches a driver's eye. With no light falling on it, it does not glow. Two rings: one per ankle, or one spare.

Fitting

1. Gather the trouser leg around your ankle, bringing the spare fabric to the outside of the leg.
2. Gently part the two ends of the ring, no wider than 9 cm: beyond that, the plastic deforms or breaks.
3. Place the ring over the trousers at the ankle, reflective strip facing out and to the rear, where headlights come from.
4. Release gradually so it springs back and grips the fabric. It should hold without squeezing the ankle.
5. Check before riding by pedalling while stationary, foot on the pedal: the ring must neither rotate nor bother the ankle. Fit one on each leg, the right one on the chain side first.

CARE

- Wipe with a damp cloth, mild soap if needed: no solvent or brush on the reflective strip.
- Store flat or in a pocket, without crushing: a bent ring no longer grips.

ON THE ROAD

- The strip gives off no light: it replaces neither your bike lights nor the vest required by local regulations. It adds to them.
- It shows you mostly from the side and behind, at ground level: keep your lights on at night.
- A ring that slides up the calf lets the fabric loose: put it back at the ankle before setting off again.

GOOD TO KNOW

- On rain trousers or thick fabric, the ring grips less: gather the fabric well before fitting.
- One ring is enough to protect the trousers on the chain side; two make your pedalling visible on both sides.
